Latest Company News

Below are the latest news from Stef Mason, Operations and Jamie Lewis, Marketing.

OPERATIONS:

Another great month for the team with our 'new normal' level of lines inspected and shipped. We have two GT projects in Testing at the moment that we expect to release in January and will have a significant impact for the Warehouse Teams in terms of ease and efficiency of inspections and across the company in terms of communication on receipts for the Inspectors, Sales and Quality.

We continue to push forward with our plans for the Enhanced Inspection department and are finalising the set up for our new lab which will be housed in the Mezzanine. We are also investing in further test equipment with a view to extending and standardising our offering across our 3 logistics hubs.

Exciting news from Taiwan this month with our new office opening in Tapei headed up by our Sales Direct Stacy Liao. Taiwan is strategically important in the Semi market , home to Design and Manufacturing for many Blue Chip Global brands as well as the worlds largest fabrication companies. This venture is very much in keeping with our mantra of 'Think global / act local'. As always a huge thank you to our Operations, Finance, Logistics and Support teams worldwide for allowing us to keep pace and thrive within this turbulent market.

MARKETING:

October was another busy month for the new website, with lots of updates and new features added. Our auto translator is now fully working and tested. It works better than expected and now gives us the capability to instantly translate every blog we upload to the UK site and into the language of each different site with the click of a button. Meaning every single version of the site will be getting new content every month. This makes such a big difference to visitors to the site. Regular content = reputable.

The deadline for the site launch is the end of this month, so I'm going to end this here and get back to work! Lots of exciting stuff happening over the next few weeks, and I can't wait for you all to see the new site.

Oh, and a quick thank you to everyone from the UK Distribution Hub and HQ for being so helpful last week with the photoshoots! The photos look great so far and will be ready soon.

How to Improve Visibility in your Supply Chain

Visibility is more important than ever for supply chains. The past two years have been marred by unprecedented disruption, caused by a perfect storm of component shortages, trade disputes and the coronavirus pandemic.

This disruption has significantly decreased availability and increased the lead times of many products, which can be very damaging to your business.

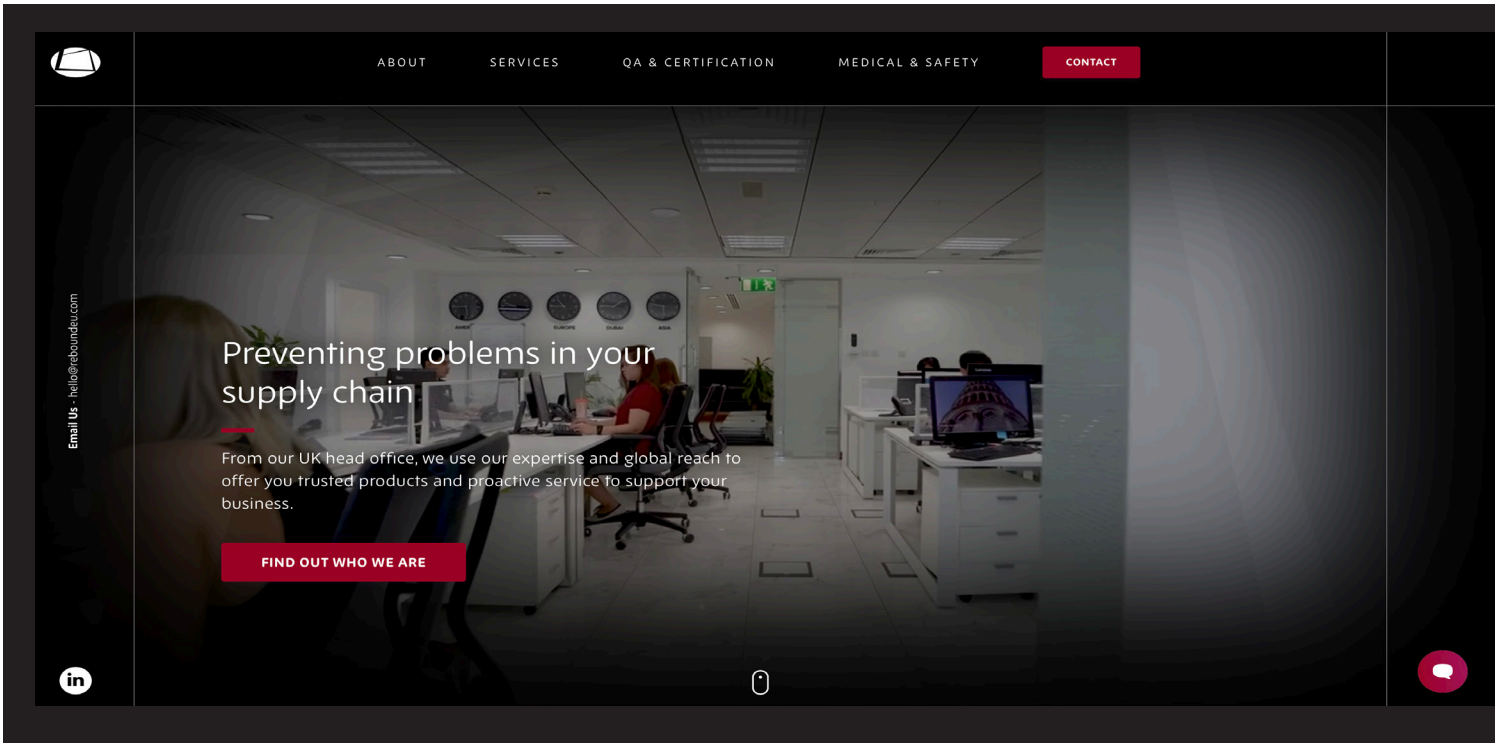

What is supply chain visibility?

Supply chain visibility allows the tracking of components, sub-assemblies and products in transit and at every point in their journey, from supplier to manufacturer to end user. This provides a clear view of inventory as well as supply chain activity, which is especially important in times of difficulty and disruption so that all parties are kept informed and up to date.

Industry Highlights

Many Asian countries that depend on exports are facing supply shortages, power cuts and other problems.

Information released Thursday showed that Japan's factory production has slowed and expectations for China's manufacturing have weakened.

Japan's Suzuki Motor Corporation became the latest automaker to freeze production lines for several days because of a lack of parts. Suzuki said it expected to suspend operations at a factory in central Japan. Another factory is also expected freeze production for two days.

Japan's emergency coronavirus measures ended on September 30. But other countries have put restrictions back in place. This has made experts unsure about economic conditions.

Pandemic-related shutdowns have affected manufacturers across Asia. In Japan, factory production in August fell by 3.2 percent from the month before. Automakers and producers of information technology products and other electronic equipment were the hardest hit, the Japanese government reported.

Other automakers also have slowed operations. They say shortages of computer chips and other parts are interfering with normal production.

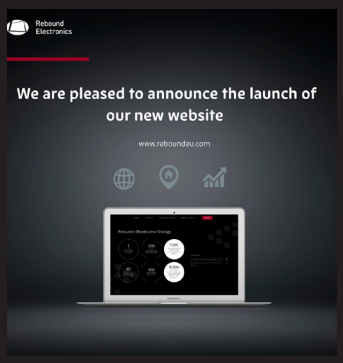

Shortages may last longer than expected

Retail sales in Japan fell 4.1 percent from a month earlier. That was more than expected. Weak demand for clothing and appliances were blamed for the decrease.

Company Q&A

1. Since joining Rebound do you feel like you've developed any new skills you may not have had prior to joining?

Yes, my 'system' skills are probably the best they have ever been and my knowledge of the supplier base both large and small has also been greatly expanded

2. Where do you see team north heading now you've got a dedicated office space and a growing team?

The sky's the limit really, a very rough estimate is that the component distribution market in the North is worth in excess of £40 million (not including Scotland) so we have a lot to go at.

3. Who has the best singing voice in the Wigan office? We'll confirm with the others if you say yourself..

Gemma Taylor, she's performed at a few festivals so no contest really!

4. Do you have any hidden talents or hobbies?

I'm a bit of a speed freak and I've held a motorbike licence since 2003 but I'm not sure if you could call riding fast a talent!

Office Bulletin
